Notes:
The Fairness Commission may alter The Progression at any time. In such cases ample notice will be given to competitors.
The Technical Delegate(s) in consultation with the Organising Committee & President of the Jury, will determine the Progression system to apply to each event/category

A six-lane progression system is to be adopted for the 2017 Australian Masters Rowing Championship.

The progression system to be used has been considered by the Rowing Australia technical staff and the President of the Jury for the event with all parties insistent that fairness and safety must take priority. The decision has been based on consideration of past Australian Masters Championships and regattas held at Nagambie. In determining that a six-lane progression system be adopted the following points have been taken into consideration:

Fairness

It is well understood that wind conditions at Nagambie can become adverse due to cross wind conditions that can particularly favour the lanes nearest the banks.

- The technical team are very cognisant of importance and prestige in determining the National Champions and that the process should not be influenced, within reason, by the lane draw and prevailing weather conditions.
- The use of six lanes ensures that the field can be moved into conditions that are fairer in the event of adverse weather rather than providing a significant unfair advantage to crews that may be drawn in sheltered lanes.
- The adoption of a six-lane progression system from the outside will prevent the confusion caused by re-draws that would likely be necessary if conditions become adverse during the regatta. As noted above, in the first instance the field will be moved over to more evenly affected lanes rather than requiring a re-draw with a different progression system that could potentially require additional rounds of racing.
- The technical team have assessed that in adverse conditions at the start it is un-manageable to effectively align more than six crews and still achieve the level of precision necessary for an Australian Championship.

Safety

- The Nagambie course requires crews returning from the finish to row back down the course, outside of lane 8, to near the 500m mark before returning to the boating area. The technical team considers there is a risk of crews straying into lane 8 as they return to the boating area particularly with the high number of competitors who are likely to be unfamiliar with the venue. Avoiding the use of Lane 8, where possible, will reduce the risk of collisions.
- It is well understood that many competitors have significant competition commitments and short timeframes between races. The organising committee has established a “hot swap” area in the return lane adjacent the boat park to enable a fast return to the starting area without the need to return to the boating area. Whilst considered beneficial for all athletes, the congestion that may be caused in this area poses an additional risk if Lane 8 were to be continually used throughout the regatta.
- The presentation area impedes slightly onto the transit lane at the finish line, also creating a risk if Lane 8 were to be used. As crews move out toward lane 8 to avoid boats in the presentation area.
